Stigma

Peter Byrne

Stigma is a prejudice (negative attitude) based on stereotypes usually leading to discrimination. Familiar mental illness stereotypes (weak, violent, comic) drive prejudice in society. Discrimination ranges from simple avoidance through exit life events (relationship, employment and housing losses) and institutional discrimination (denial of health interventions, insurance, jury service, visa inter alia). Stigma-discrimination cannot occur without a power differential. When a person with mental health problems shares societal prejudices, their self-stigma contributes to further morbidity and status loss. Reducing stigma requires multiple interventions: a language of inclusion (no more ‘schizophrenics’), legal and organisational reforms, and cultural changes based on empowerment.
Stigma - in 100 words
Peter Byrne
Access the most recent version at DOI: 10.1192/bjp.195.1.80

References
This article cites 0 articles, 0 of which you can access for free at:
http://bjp.rcpsych.org/content/195/1/80#BIBL

Reprints/permissions
To obtain reprints or permission to reproduce material from this paper, please write to permissions@rcpsych.ac.uk

You can respond to this article at /letters/submit/bjprcpsych;195/1/80

Downloaded from http://bjp.rcpsych.org/ on September 6, 2017
Published by The Royal College of Psychiatrists

To subscribe to The British Journal of Psychiatry go to:
http://bjp.rcpsych.org/site/subscriptions/