There is horror in carers turning into killers. Hospitals readily provide the means and opportunity. Doctors in the Japanese Imperial Army Biological Warfare Unit 731 killed experimentally, and in Nazi Germany to end Lebensunwertes Leben. Elsewhere motive is a puzzle. Beverley Allitt killed young children by injection or suffocation: Munchausen syndrome by proxy, perhaps, though murder with no intermediary. Benjamin Geen in Banbury engineered cardio-respiratory arrest in patients whom he might heroically resuscitate, if they were lucky. Colin Norris killed old ladies by injecting insulin, ostensibly because he disliked old ladies. Bad, not mad, maybe – but certainly dangerous to know.
Is nowhere safe? Homicide in hospital – in 100 words
Robin Ferner
Access the most recent version at DOI: 10.1192/bjp.bp.111.101089

References
This article cites 0 articles, 0 of which you can access for free at:
http://bjp.rcpsych.org/content/199/6/478#BIBL

Reprints/permissions
To obtain reprints or permission to reproduce material from this paper, please write to permissions@rcpsych.ac.uk

You can respond to this article at /letters/submit/bjprcpsych;199/6/478

Downloaded from http://bjp.rcpsych.org/ on October 21, 2017
Published by The Royal College of Psychiatrists