

---

Coming to Terms with Schizophrenia

Barry Tebb

Why our son, why?

Every morning the same dark chorus wakes me
And I wonder how I am still alive.

‘Balance the forces of life and death’
Is the Kleinian recipe for survival.

‘It is God’s will, life is meant to test us’
My Christian heritage tells me.

‘Life is a vale of soul making’
Keats reminds us.

Insistently the morning traffic hums
As I sip my tea, list calls to make,
Sigh in frustration at unread books.

For solace I look at cards of Haworth
Moorland vistas of unending paths
Cloudscapes only a Constable could paint
High Withens in a gale, the sloping village street.

How? When? Why?
‘The truth’ – if such an entity exists –
Is that I want to run away

Barry Tebb was born in Leeds in 1942. He is a carer and a prolific poet, Leeds Partnerships NHS Foundation Trust governor and campaigner for better mental health. This poem is from Tranquility Street: New & Selected Poems, published by Sixties Press in 2004 and reprinted with permission.

Chosen by Femi Oyebode.

---

Coming to Terms with Schizophrenia – poem
Barry Tebb
Access the most recent version at DOI: 10.1192/bjp.bp.111.101964

References
This article cites 0 articles, 0 of which you can access for free at:
http://bjp.rcpsych.org/content/200/3/209#BIBL

Reprints/permissions
To obtain reprints or permission to reproduce material from this paper, please write to permissions@rcpsych.ac.uk

You can respond to this article at /letters/submit/bjprcpsych;200/3/209

Downloaded from http://bjp.rcpsych.org/ on September 7, 2017
Published by The Royal College of Psychiatrists

To subscribe to The British Journal of Psychiatry go to:
http://bjp.rcpsych.org/site/subscriptions/